

भगवद्गीता

The Bhagavad Gītā The Song of the Blessed One

धृतराष्ट्र उवाच ॥

dhṛtarāṣṭra uvāca || Dhritarashtra spoke:

धर्मक्षेत्रे कुरुरुक्षेत्रे समवेता युयुत्सवः॥

dharmakṣetre kurukṣetre samavetā yuyutsavaḥ II on the field of dharma, on the field of the Kurus, gathered together, eager for battle

मामकाः पाण्डवाश्चेव किमकुर्वत सँजय ॥१॥

māmakāḥ pāṇḍavāścaiva kimakurvata samjaya ||1|| mine and the sons of Pandu what did they do, O Samjaya?

The Bhagavad Gita is perhaps the most famous text in Indian philosophy. It is part of a much larger text, the Mahabharata, the great story of India that is the longest epic poem ever written. The story of the Mahabharata recounts a great war between the Kaurava and Pandava princes. The Bhagavad Gita tells a small part of this story, but in that story the core teachings of the Upanishads are summarized in a most dramatic setting. The Bhagavad Gita was composed, at least in part, as a response to the challenges to the philosophy of the Upanishads that were raised in Jainism and Buddhism, and is thus very important in the development of the philosophy of Hinduism. The story takes place before a great battle is about to start, and it recounts the exchange between Arjuna, one of the Pandava princes, and his charioteer Krishna. The setting dramatizes the whole problem of Indian philosophy. If it is the consequence of one's actions that leads to the karma that binds one to samsara, then how can one act at all in the world and still attain the enlightenment that is liberation (moksha) from samsara? Even good actions, though they would result in better karma and thus better rebirth, still lead to further rebirth. The first words of the text make clear the philosophical problem that is the context of the story. The whole story of The Bhagavad Gita is narrated by Sanjaya, the charioteer of Dhritarashtra, the blind king of the Kauravas. In the opening lines, the king asks Sanjaya what is happening on the "field of dharma" (Dharmakshetra) and the "field of the Kurus" (Kurukshetra). Kurukshetra refers to the particular place, the land where this legendary battle took place. Dharmakshetra refers to the philosophical context of the story. It is not insignificant that the first word of The Bhagavad Gita, after the introductory words "Dhritarashtra spoke," is dharma. A most important word in Indian philosophy, dharma in this context might best be translated as 'righteousness' or as 'duty' in the sense of one's moral obligation. All of us are on the 'field of dharma' whenever there is a concern for right action, and there probably cannot be a more dramatic setting than a battlefield for focusing on this problem.

In the story Sanjaya relates to his king, Arjuna has directed his charioteer to drive the chariot between the armies so he can better survey the field. As he looks across the field to the opposing army, Arjuna recognizes people he has known all his life, some former teachers, and cousins and uncles of the Kaurava clan. The first chapter tells of the sounding of the horns, the blowing the conchshells, prior to the battle, and then Sanjaya tells of Arjuna's despair. He does not see how it could possibly be right, and thus in accord with dharma, to go forward with this battle and kill those whom he does not want to kill. The rest of the story, and thus the main body of The Bhagavad Gita is Krishna's response to Arjuna's dilemma.

It is also not insignificant that Krishna is Arjuna's charioteer, for the teaching that Krishna delivers in The Bhagavad Gita concerns yoga. The word 'yoga' is derived from the same source as the English word 'yoke'. A charioteer was thus literally a 'yogi,' one who yoked horses to the chariot. Thus, the charioteer Krishna is a yogi, a teacher of yoga, and the main teaching of The Bhagavad Gita is that Arjuna's dilemma cannot be really be solved unless one has mastered yoga. It turns out that Krishna is also an avatar, an incarnation of the god Vishnu, one of the three principal gods of classical Hinduism (along with Brahma and Shiva). In the most dramatic scene of the story the identity of Krishna is revealed to Arjuna. Vishnu is the god who helps human beings in a time of crisis, and in The Bhagavad Gita he is incarnated as Krishna in order to help human beings deal with the problem faced on the field of dharma.

On one level, some might find The Bhagavad Gita to be a disturbing text, for the advice Krishna gives to Arjuna is that he should rise above his despair and fight the battle. Although The Bhagavad Gita ends before the battle begins, it is clear from the Mahabharata that what follows is a very bloody battle in which many are slain. The second chapter outlines the major themes of Krishna's teaching. At first Krishna tells Arjuna that it is shameful and cowardice not to fight. Arjuna then explains further that his problem is that there are conflicting dharmas. In Indian society one's moral obligation or duty (dharma) was determined by one's caste. The duty of a prince or warrior (kshatriya), for example, would be different from that of a priest (brahmin). As Arjuna is a prince it was his duty to fight. On the other hand, however, Arjuna sees that he will have to kill even members of his own extended family and he doesn't see how this could be consistent with another duty to preserve the family. How could the whole order of society be maintained, Arjuna asks, if this sacred dharma is violated?

Krishna then lays out four arguments why Arjuna should not despair and thus rise up to fight the battle. In these arguments Krishna is restating the basic teachings of the Upanishads. In the first argument (verses 11-25) Krishna restates the fundamental teaching of the Upanishads that the true self (Atman) never really dies. The true self has always existed and will never cease to exist. Verse 16 expresses clearly the view that reality is unchanging—whatever exists (being) must continue to exist, nothing that does not exist (non-being) can come to exist. Verses 18 and 19 repeat almost word for word the teaching in verses 18 and 19 of the second chapter of the Katha Upanishad. The true self does not die when the body perishes; and thus if the slaver thinks that it slavs and the one who is slain thinks it is slain, then they do not understand the truth of the nature of the self. Verse 22 is famous for its analogy that reincarnation into new bodies is like discarding worn-out clothes and putting on new ones. In verses 26 and 27 Krishna puts forth a different argument, suggesting that, even if one does not understand that the true self never is slain, Arjuna shouldn't worry for those who die in battle will end up being reborn again. In verses 31-33 Krishna puts forth another argument that Arjuna must follow his caste duty as a kshatriya and fight. There is the suggestion, in verse 33 when Krishna refers to a 'war of sacred duty (dharma)' that the war is a just war, at least from the side of the Pandavas, and this is what the larger context of the story of the Mahabharata suggests. In verses 34-36 Krishna puts forth a final argument that Arjuna will be shamed if he doesn't do his duty and fight the battle.

These arguments, however, are just preliminaries as Krishna's real teaching doesn't begin until verse 39 where he explains that the real solution to the problem of karma faced on the field of dharma is yoga. The Bhagavad Gita is famous for its teaching about yoga, and in that teaching Krishna explains three different types of yoga: karma yoga, the yoga of meditation, and the yoga of devotion. Each of these types of yoga is introduced, at least briefly, in the second

कर्म योग
karma yoga	the yoga of action karma yoga राज योग
rāja yoga	the "royal" yoga; the yoga of knowledge
raja yoga	yoga of meditation भक्ति योग
bhakti yoga	the yoga of devotion bhakti yoga

chapter. In verses 47 and 48 karma yoga is introduced. Here Krishna explains that if one acts without being concerned for the fruit of action, then the action will not result in the accumulation of karma binding one to rebirth. In this one can see the response to the teachings of Jainism and Buddhism. The solution to the problem of karma taught in Jainism was basically to try as much as possible to not act at all. Krishna's teaching, developed in the third chapter, suggests that this solution is impractical as it is not really possible to avoid action as long as one is in this world. One cannot avoid acting in the world, Krishna teaches, but if one acts completely unselfishly, without selfish desire, without a concern for a reward for the action, then the action will not result in further karma. This teaching is basically in agreement with the 2nd Noble Truth of Buddhism in emphasizing the surrendering of desire as the key to enlightenment. At the end of chapter two, in verse 71, Krishna even says that if one renounces all desire and craving then one finds the bliss of nirvana. Krishna's teaching differs from Buddhism, of course, in putting forth the teachings of the Upanishads that Buddhism rejects. In contrast to the Buddhist teaching on interdependent arising and impermanence, Krishna's teaching emphasizes that the true self within (Atman) is identical with the great essence of reality (Brahman) that never arose in the first place because it always was, and will never pass away because it always will be.

After teaching about karma yoga, Krishna explains, in verse 49 of the second chapter, that this yoga is inferior to the yoga of understanding, and here is where Krishna introduces the royal yoga, the yoga of meditation. One reason why the yoga of meditation is superior to karma yoga is that even to be capable of truly selfish action would require the knowledge of the self that comes through meditation. There are surely many actions one might think are done selflessly that are really motivated by an unconscious selfish desire. Most of the remainder of the second chapter, and then the whole of the sixth chapter, are focused on explaining this yoga and describing the yogi, the one who has mastered this discipline. The sixth chapter might even be read as a basic introduction to the yoga of meditation. Krishna explains how one should sit, how one should focus the attention of one's gaze on the tip of the nose so that the mind does not wander. The aim of meditation is to bring the mind to a point of stillness, suggested in the famous simile of verse 19, where it is suggested the mind in meditation is like a lamp, or candle flame, sheltered from the wind. A flame will flicker in the wind, but when it is sheltered

The Eight Limbs of Yoga from the Yoga Sūtras of Patañjali

Sādhanās (The Eight Methods or "Limbs" of Yoga)

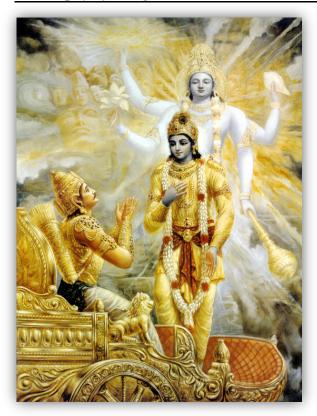

- 1. Yama (The 5 Restraints: non-violence, non-lying, non-stealing, non-grasping, celibacy)
- $2.\ Niyama\ (Observances: cleanliness, contentment, purificatory\ action,\ study,\ devotion)$
- 3. Asana (body postures)
- 4. Prāṇāyāma (skillful breathing exercises)
- 5. Pratyāhāra (control of the senses)
- 6. Dhāraṇā (concentration)
- 7. Dhyāna (meditation, meditative absorption)
- 8. Samādhi (highest state of meditation, concentration, "trance," a state of enstasis or enstasy) from the wind it will become still. Krishna's teaching emphasizes that when the mind comes to this calm, stillness, then the true self (Atman) that is one with the infinite spirit (Brahman) will be known. The highest state of meditation will be this realization in which Atman is understood to be one with Brahman. This self-realization would complete the goal of yoga to tie or yoke together the self and its true identity. This discipline of the yoga of meditation would be developed at great length in a later text, the famous Yoga Sutras written by a master of yoga named Patanjali. Following the example of the Buddha's eightfold path, Patanjali outlines eight steps or limbs of yoga. It is interesting to compare Patanjali's eight limbs of yoga with the eightfold path of Buddhism. Both of them end in meditation. The three last stages of the eight limbs of yoga and the eightfold path are deeper and deeper states of meditation. The highest stage of meditation in both is described as samadhi, and yet, obviously, just exactly what is meant by this high level state of concentration would be very different in Hinduism and Buddhism.

The Eightfold Path from the First Sermon of the Buddha The Eightfold Path (Sanskrit, Pali)

- 1) Right View or Understanding (dṛṣṭi, diṭṭhi)
- 2) Right Resolve or Intention or Thought (samkalpa, sankappa)
- 3) Right Speech (vāc, vācā)
- 4) Right Action (karmānta, kammanta)
- 5) Right Livelihood (ājīva)
- 6) Right Effort (vyāyāma, vāyāma)
- 7) Right Mindfulness (smṛti, sati)
- 8) Right Concentration (samādhi)

While Krishna's teaching in chapter six emphasizes the importance of the yoga of meditation, The Bhagavad Gita is most known for an emphasis on bhakti yoga, or the yoga of devotion. The yoga of devotion is introduced, or at least hinted at in verse 61 of the second chapter when Krishna says that the one who is disciplined in yoga "should focus on me." In much of the rest of the book the theme of the voga of devotion is developed, climaxing in the scene in chapter eleven in which Krishna reveals himself to Arjuna in all his terrifying majesty. After hearing about all of Krishna's powers, Arjuna asks to see Krishna's divine form. Krishna then gives Arjuna a supernatural or 'celestial eye' so that Arjuna may see his divine form. The narrative now returns to Sanjaya describing to the blind king the awesome revelation of Krishna's divine form to Arjuna. The entire universe in all its multiplicity is seen as Krishna's body, and all of existence is seen as rushing headlong like a river into Krishna's flaming mouths. Krishna reveals Himself as Time, the destroyer of worlds. Krishna then again exhorts Arjuna to fight, to slay all his enemies. Arjuna can only be the occasion, for they are already slain by Krishna. In terrified ecstasy Arjuna acknowledges Krishna as the God of gods, the Supreme resting place of the world. As Arjuna is no longer able to behold the tremendous vision, Krishna returns to his previous human form, and ends by telling Arjuna that whoever worships Him, without attachment, and free from enmity toward all creatures, will be united with Him

Whether the yoga of meditation or the yoga of devotion is more important is one of the crucial issues in the debate about the interpretation of The Bhagavad Gita. The emphasis on bhakti yoga in The Bhagavad Gita led to the development of devotional Hinduism in medieval India. The Bhagavad Gita is thus the most important text in devotional Hinduism today, which manifests in a number of devotional sects of Hinduism, the most well known being the Hare Krishna movement, founded by the Indian guru A.C. Bhaktivedanta Swami Prabhupada. As suggested by his title, this teacher certainly emphasized the importance of bhakti yoga. Whether the yoga of meditation or the yoga of devotion are two different paths that lead to the same goal, or whether both are necessary to reaching this goal are interesting philosophical questions raised by The Bhagavad Gita. Is it enough to chant "Hare Krishna" or is it more important to meditate and come to the state of samadhi? The same issue comes up in the development of Buddhism. The notion of the celestial Buddhas in Mahayana Buddhism opened up many devotional forms of Mahayana Buddhism that have had a significant impact on East Asian cultures. Some of the forms of Mahayana Buddhism, such as Pure Land Buddhism, emphasize the chanting of the name of Amida Buddha (one of the celestial Buddhas), while others, most notably Zen, emphasize the importance of meditation.

The Bhagavad Gita is certainly one of the most important texts in Indian philosophy. It provides a succinct restatement of the fundamental teaching of the Upanishads about Atman and Brahman, and it develops the teaching of yoga in the Upanishads, outlining three different types of yoga. Included below is the introductory chapter explaining Arjuna's dilemma, the second chapter that introduces the main themes of Krishna's response to Arjuna's dilemma, and then the sixth chapter that relates Krishna's teaching concerning the yoga of meditation.

An Illustration of the Kurukshetra War in the Mahabharata

THE FIRST TEACHING

Arjuna's Despair

Dhritarashtra

Sanjaya, tell me what my sons and the sons of Pandu did when they met, wanting to battle on the field of Kuru, on the field of sacred duty?

Sanjaya

Your son Duryodhana, the king, seeing the Pandava forces arrayed, approached his teacher Drona and spoke in command.

> "My teacher, see the great Pandava army arrayed by Drupada's son, your pupil; intent on revenge.

Here are heroes; mighty archers equal to Bhima and Arjuna in warfare, Yuyudhana, Virata, and Drupada, your sworn foe on his great chariot.

Here too are Dhrishtaketu, Cekitaila, and the brave king of Benares; Purujit, Kuntibhoja, and the manly king of the Shibis.

Yudhamanyu is bold, and Uttamauias is brave: the sons of Subhadra and Draupadi all command great chariots.

Now, honored priest, mark the superb men on our side as I tell you the names of my army's leaders.

They are you and Bhishma, Karna and Kripa, a victor in battles, your own son Ashvatthama, Vikarna, and the son of Somadatta.

Many other heroes also risk their lives for my sake, bearing varied weapons and skilled in the ways of war.

Guarded by Bhishma, the strength of our army is without limit; but the strength of their army, guarded by Bhima, is limited.

In all th movements of battle, you and your men, stationed according to plan, must guard Bhishma well!

Bhishma, fiery elder of the Kurus, roared his lion's roar and blew his conch horn, exciting Duryodhana's delight.

Conches and kettledrums, cymbals, tabors, and trumpets were sounded at once and the din of tumult arose.

1

2

3

5

6

Standing on their great chariot yoked with white stallions, Krishna and Arjuna, Pandu's son, sounded their divine conches.

Krishna blew Pancajanya, won from a demon; Arjuna blew Devadatta, a gift of the gods; fierce wolf-bellied Bhima blew Paundra, his great conch of the east.

Yudhisththira, Kunti's son, the king, blew Anantavijaya, conch of boundless victory; his twin brothers Nakula and Sahadeva blew conches resonant and jewel toned.

The king of Benares, a superb archer, and Shikhandin on his great chariot, Drishtadyumna, Virata, and indomitable Satyaki, all blew their conches.

Drupada, with his five grandsons, and Subhadra's strong-armed son, each in his turn blew their conches, O King.

The noise tore the hearts of Dhritarashtra's sons, and tumult echoed through heaven and earth.

9

8

11

10

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

saw Dhri	nis war flag a rampant monkey, tarashtra's sons assembled ons were ready to clash,		Krishna, I seek no victory, or kingship or pleasures. What use to us are kingship, fted his bow.	20	delights, or life itself?	32
He told h	uis charioteer: "Krishna,		We sought kingship, delights and pleasures for the sake of those halt my chariot		assembled to abandon their lives
	between the armies!	21	and fortunes in battle.	33
	Far enough for me to see.		They are teachers, fathers, sons,
	these men who lust far war,		and grandfathers, uncles, grandsons,
	ready to fight with me		fathers and brothers of wives,
	in the strain of battle.	22	and other men of our family.	34
	I see men gathered here,		I do not want to kill them
	eager to fight, bent on serving the folly		even if I am killed, Krishna; not for kingship of all three worlds,
	of Dhritarashtra's son."	23	much less for the earth!	35
When Ar	juna had spoken,		What joy is there for us, Krishna,
Krishna l			in killing Dhritarashtra's sons?
their sple	endid chariot		Evil will haunt us if we kill them,
between	the armies.	24	though their bows are drawn to kill.	36
	hishma and Drona		Honor forbids us to kill
	ne great kings,		our cousins, Dhritarashtra's sons;
	'Arjuna, see	25	how can we know happiness	37
the Kuru	men assembled here!"	25	if we kill our own kinsmen?	3/
	aw them standing there:		The greed that distorts their reason grandfathers, teachers,		blinds them to the sin they commit
	rothers, sons,	26	in ruining the family, blinds them	20
grandsor	ns, and friends.	26	to the crime of betraying friends.	38
	yed his elders		How can we ignore the wisdom
	panions in both armies,		of turning from this evil when we see the sin
all his kir	asmen ed together.	27	of family destruction, Krishna?	39
assemble	tu together.	27		37
Dejected, he said th	, filled with strange pity,		When the family is ruined, the timeless laws of family duty (dharma)
	Krishna, I see my kinsmen		perish; and when duty (dharma) is lost, gathered here, wanting war.	28	chaos overwhelms the family.	40
	My limbs sink,		In overwhelming chaos, Krishna,
	my mouth is parched,		women of the family are corrupted;
	my body trembles,		and when women are corrupted,
	the hair bristles on my flesh.	29	disorder is born in society.	41
	The magic bow slips		This discord drags the violators
	from my hand, my skin burns,		and the family itself to hell;
	I cannot stand still,	20	for ancestors fall when rites	42
	my mind reels.	30	of offering rice and water lapse.	42
	I see omens of chaos,		The sins of men who violate
	Krishna, I see no good		the family create disorder in society in killing my kinsmen in battle.	31	that undermines the constant laws of caste (varna) and family duty (dharma).	∆ .2
	in battle.	31	or caste (varna) and family duty (anarma).	43

Krishna, we have heard that a place in hell is reserved for men who undermine family duties.	44	The flaw of pity blights my very being; conflicting sacred duties ( dharma ) confound my real ask you to tell me decisively—which is better? I am your pupil. Teach me what I seek!	ason. 7
I lament the great sin we commit when our greed for kingship and pleasures drives us to kill our kinsmen.	45	I see nothing that could drive away the grief that withers my senses; even if I won the kingdoms of unrivaled wealth on earth and sovereignty over gods.	8
If Dhritarashtra's armed sons kill me in battle when I am unarmed and offer no resistance, it will be my reward."	46	Sanjaya  Arjuna told this to Krishna—then saying, "I shall not fight,"
Saying this in the time of war, Arjuna slumped into the chariot and laid down his bow and arrows, his mind tormented by grief.	47	he fell silent.  Mocking him gently, Krishna gave this counsel As Arjuna sat dejected, between the two armies.	9
THE SECOND TEACHING Philosophy and Spiritual Discipline (The Yoga of Knowledge)		Lord Krishna  You grieve for those beyond grief,	10
Sanjaya Arjuna sat dejected,		and you speak words of insight; but learned men do not grieve for the dead or the living.	11 filled with pity, his sad eyes blurred by tears. Krishna gave him counsel. Lord Krishna	1	Never have I not existed, nor you, nor these kings; and never in the future shall we cease to exist.	12
Why this cowardice in time of crisis, Arjuna? The coward is ignoble, shameful, foreign to the ways of heaven.	2	Just as the embodied self enters childhood, youth, and old age, so does it enter another body; this does not confound a steadfast man.	13
Don't yield to impotence! It is unnatural in you! Banish this petty weakness from your heart. Rise to the fight, Arjuna!	3	Contacts with matter make us feel heat and cold, pleasure and pain. Arjuna, you must learn to endure	1.4
Arjuna	3	fleeting things as they come and go!  When these cannot torment a man, when suffering and joy are equal	14
Krishna, how can I fight against Bhishma and Drona with arrows when they deserve my worship?	4	for him and he has courage, he is fit for immortality.  Nothing of nonbeing comes to be,	15
It is better in this world to beg for scraps of food than to eat meals smeared with the blood of elders I killed at the height of their power		nor does being cease to exist; the boundary between these two is seen by men who see reality.	16
while their goals were still desires.  We don't know which weight is worse to bear— our conquering them or their conquering us.	5	Indestructible is the presence that pervades all this; no one can destroy this unchanging reality.	17
We will not want to live if we kill the sons of Dhritarashtra assembled before us.	6	and anomanging reunty.	1/

Our bodies are known to end,		The self embodied in the body but the embodied self is enduring,		of every being is indestructible;
indestructible, and immeasurable;		you have no cause to grieve
therefore, Arjuna, fight the battle!	18	for all these creatures, Arjuna!	30
He who thinks this self a killer		Look to your own duty (dharma);
and he who thinks it killed,		do not tremble before it;
both fail to understand;		nothing is better for a warrior (kshatriya)
it does not kill, nor is it killed.	19	than a battle of sacred duty (dharma).	31
It is not been it does not die.		The decree of bearing area
It is not born, it does not die; having been, it will never not be;		The doors of heaven open for warriors who rejoice unborn, enduring, constant and primordial,		to have a battle like this it is not killed when the body is killed.	20	thrust on them by chance.	32
-
Arjuna, when a man knows the self		If you fail to wage this war to be indestructible, enduring, unborn,		of sacred duty (dharma), unchanging, how does he kill	21	you will abandon your own duty	22
or cause anyone to kill?	21	and fame only to gain evil.	33
As a man discards worn-out clothes		People will tell
to put on new and different ones,		of your undying shame,
so the embodied self discards its worn-out bodies		and for a man of honor to take on other new ones.	22	shame is worse than death.	34
Weapons do not cut it,		The great chariot warriors will think fire does not burn it,		you deserted in fear of battle;
waters do not wet it,		you will be despised wind does not wither it.	23	by those who held you in esteem.	35
It cannot be cut or burned;		Variation and a smill alond arrass.
it cannot be cut or burned;		Your enemies will slander you, scorning your skill
it is enduring, all-pervasive,		in so many unspeakable ways—
fixed, immovable, and timeless.	24	could any suffering be worse?	36
med, mmo , doto, dna emerces.		could any sumoring so worse.
It is called unmanifest,		If you are killed, you win heaven;
inconceivable, and immutable;		if you triumph, you enjoy the earth;
since you know that to be so,	a=	therefore, Arjuna, stand up
you should not grieve!	25	and resolve to fight the battle!	37
If you think of its birth		Impartial to joy and suffering, and death as ever-recurring,		gain and loss, victory and defeat,
then too, Great Warrior,		arm yourself for the battle,
you have no cause to grieve!	26	lest you fall into evil.	38
Death is certain for anyone born,		Understanding is defined in terms of philosophy;
and birth is certain for the dead;		now hear it in spiritual discipline ( yoga ).
since the cycle is inevitable,		Armed with this understanding, Arjuna, you have no cause to grieve.	27	you will escape the bondage of action (karma).	39
Constant of the constant of		No offertional land
Creatures are unmanifest in origin,		No effort in this world manifest in the midst of life,		is lost or wasted;
and unmanifest again in the end. Since this is so, why do you lament?	28	a fragment of sacred duty (dharma) saves you from great fear.	40
onice this is so, why do you famelit!	20	saves you from great teal.	40
Rarely someone sees it,		This understanding is unique rarely another speaks it,		in its inner core or resolve;
rarely anyone hears it		diffuse and pointless are the ways
even hearing it, no one really knows it.	29	irresolute men understand.	41

Undiscerning men who delight in the tenets of ritual lore		Arjuna utter florid speech, proclaiming,		Krishna, what defines a man
"There is nothing else!"	42	deep in contemplation whose insight
 		and thought are sure? How would he speak?
Driven by desire, they strive after heaven		How would he sit? How would he move?	54 and contrive to win powers and delights,
but their intricate ritual language		Lord Krishna
bears only the fruit of action ( karma ) in rebirth.	43	Bord In Isinia
bears only the fruit of action (karma) in rebirth.	13	When he gives up desires in his mind,
Obsessed with powers and delights,		is content with the self within himself,
their reason lost in words,		then he is said to be a man 55
they do not find in contemplation	4.4	whose insight is sure, Arjuna.	55
this understanding of inner resolve.	44	747) CC 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1
		When suffering does not disturb his mind,
Arjuna, the realm of sacred lore		when his craving for pleasures has vanished.
is natureCbeyond its triad of qualities (gunas),		when attraction, fear, and anger are gone, dualities, and mundane rewards,		he is called a sage whose thought is sure.	56
be forever lucid, alive to your self ( Atman ).	45
		When he shows no preference
For the discerning priest,		in fortune or misfortune
all of sacred lore		and neither exults nor hates,
has no more value than a well		his insight is sure.	57
when water flows everywhere.	46
·		When, like a tortoise retracting
Be intent on action (karma),		its limbs, he withdraws his senses
not on the fruits of action;		completely from sensuous objects,
avoid attraction to the fruits		his insight is sure.	58
and attachment to inaction!	47	ms morghe is our c.	50
and accaeminent to maction.	17	Sensuous objects fade
Perform actions, firm in discipline (yoga),		when the embodied self abstains from food;
relinquishing attachment;		the taste lingers, but it too fades 59
be impartial to failure and success	40	in the vision of higher truth.	39
this equanimity is called discipline (yoga).	48	Francisco de la companya de la compa
		Even when a man of wisdom
Arjuna, action (karma) is far inferior		tries to control them, Arjuna,
to the discipline (yoga) of understanding;		the bewildering senses
so seek refuge in understanding—pitiful		attack his mind with violence.	60
are men drawn by the fruit of action (karma).	49
		Controlling them all,
Disciplined by understanding,		with discipline (yoga) he should focus on me;
one abandons both good and evil deeds;		when his senses are under control, so arm yourself for discipline (yoga)—		his insight is sure.	61
discipline (yoga) is skill in action.	50
		Brooding about sensuous objects
Wise men disciplined by understanding		makes attachment to them grow;
relinquish the fruit born of action (karma);		from attachment desire arises, freed from these bonds of rebirth.		from desire anger is born.	62
they reach a place beyond decay.	51	8
they reach a place beyond accay.	01	From anger comes confusion;
When your understanding passes beyond		from confusion memory lapses;
the swamp of delusion,		from broken memory understanding is lost;
you will be indifferent to all		from loss of understanding, he is ruined.	63
that is heard in sacred lore.	52	irom 1055 or understanding, he is runied.	03
that is heart in sacret inte.	34	Put a man of inner strength
TATIL and a second and a second district to the second sec		But a man of inner strength
When you understanding turns		whose senses experience objects from sacred lore to stand fixed.		without attraction and hatred, immovable in contemplation,	= 0	in self-control, finds serenity.	64
then you will reach discipline ( voga ).	53

In serenity, all his sorrows dissolve; his reason becomes serene, his understanding sure.	65	Earlier I taught the twofold basis of good in the world— for philosophers, disciplined in knowledge (jñāna yoga) for men of discipline, action (karma yoga).	); 3
Without discipline, he has no understanding or inner power; without inner power, he has no peace; and without peace where is joy?	66	A man cannot escape the force of action by abstaining from actions; he does not attain success just be renunciation.	4
If his mind submits to the play of the senses, they drive away insight, as wind drives a ship on water.	67	No one exists for even an instant without performing action; however unwilling, everything being is forced to act by the qualities of nature.	5
So, Great Warrior, when withdrawal of the senses from sense objects is complete, discernment is firm.	68	When his senses are controlled but he keeps recalling sense objects with his mind, he is a self-deluded hypocrite.	6
When it is night for all creatures, a master of restraint is awake; when they are awake, it is night for the sage who sees reality.	69	When he controls his senses with his mind and engages in the discipline of action with his faculties of action, detachment sets him apart.	7
As the mountain depths of the ocean are unmoved when waters rush into it, so the man unmoved when desires enter him attains a peace that eludes the man of many desires.	70	Perform necessary action; it is more powerful than inaction; without action you even fail to sustain your own body.	8
When he renounces all desires and acts without craving, possessiveness, or individuality, he finds peace (the bliss of nirvana ).	71	Action imprisons the world unless it is done as a sacrifice; freed from attachment, Arjuna, perform action as sacrifice!	9
This is the place of infinite spirit; achieving it, one is freed from delusion; abiding in it even at the time of death, one finds the pure calm of infinity.	72	When creating living beings and sacrifice, Prajapati, the primordial creator, said: "By sacrifice you will procreate! Let it be your wish-granting cow!	10
THE THIRD TEACHING		Foster he gods with this, and may they foster you; by enriching one another,
Discipline of Action (The Yoga of Action)		you will achieve a higher good.  Enriched by sacrifice, the gods will give you the delights you desire;	11
Arjuna  If you think understanding is more powerful than action,		he is a thief who enjoys their gifts without giving to them in return.  Good men eating the remnants	12
why, Krishna, do you urge me to this horrific act?  You confuse my understanding	1	of sacrifice are free of any guilt, but evil men who cook for themselves eat the food of sin.	13
with a maze of words; speak one certain truth so I may achieve what is good.	2	Creatures depend on food, food comes from the rain, rain depends on sacrifice,	1.4
Lord Krishna		and sacrifice comes from action.	14

Action comes from the spirit of prayer,		Actions are all effected whose source is OM, sound of the imperishable;		by the qualities of nature;
so the pervading infinite spirit		but deluded by individuality,'
is ever present in the rites of sacrifice.	15	the self thinks, "I am the actor."	27
		When he can discriminate
He who fails to keep turning		the actions of nature's qualities
the wheel here set in motion		and think, "The qualities depend wastes his life in sin,		on other qualities," he is detached.	28
addicted to the senses, Arjuna.	16	The second sheet and the second state of the second
Duturbon a man finda daliaht		Those deluded by the qualities of nature
But when a man finds delight within himself and feels inner joy		are attached to their actions; a man who knows this should not upset and pure contentment in himself,		these dull men of partial knowledge.	29
there is nothing more to be done.	17	these duli men of partial knowledge.	2)
there is no timing more to be done.		Surrender all actions to me,
He has no stake here		and fix your reason on your inner self;
in deeds done or undone,		without hope or possessiveness,
nor does his purpose		your fever subsided, fight the battle!	30
depend on other creatures.	18
		Men who always follow my thought,
Always perform with detachment		trusting it without finding fault,
any action you must do;		are freed	0.4
performing action with detachment,	10	even by their actions.	31
one achieves supreme good.	19	But those who find fault
Janaka and other ancient kings		and fail to follow my thought,
attained perfection by action alone;		know that they are lost fools, seeing the way to preserve		deluded by every bit of knowledge.	32
the world, you should act.	20	deladed by every bit of knowledge.	02
, ,		Even a man of knowledge
Whatever a leader does,		behaves in accord with his own nature;
the ordinary people also do.		creatures all conform to nature;
He sets the standard		what can one do to restrain them?	33
for the world to follow.	21
		Attraction and hatred are poised
In the three worlds,		in the object of every sense experience;
there is nothing I must do,		a man must not fall prey	2.4
nothing unattained to be attained, yet I engage in action.	22	to these two brigands lurking on his path!	34
yet i engage in action.	22	Your own duty (dharma) done imperfectly
What if I did not engage		is better than another man's done well.
relentlessly in action?		It is better to die in one's duty;
Men retrace my path		another man's duty is perilous.	35
as every turn, Ārjuna.	23	J
		Arjuna
These worlds would collapse
if I did not perform action;		Krishna, what makes a person
I would create disorder in society,		commit evil
living beings would be destroyed.	24	against his own will,	2.6
As the ignorant act with attachment		as if compelled by force?	36
As the ignorant act with attachment to actions, Arjuna,		Lord Krishna
so wise men should act with detachment		LOI U IXI ISIIIIU to preserve the world.	25	It is desire and anger, arising
F- 5001 10 410 1101141	20	from nature's quality of passion;
No wise man disturbs the understanding		know it here as the enemy,
of ignorant men attached to action;		voracious and very evil!	37
he should inspire them,		-
performing all actions with discipline.	26

As fire is obscured by smoke		He should elevate himself by the self (Atman),
and a mirror by dirt,		not degrade himself;
as an embryo is veiled by its caul,	20	for the self (Atman) is its own friend	-
so is knowledge obscured by this.	38	and its own worst foe.	5
 1 1		m) 1664.
Knowlege is obscured		The self (Atman) is the friend of a man by the wise man's eternal enemy,		who masters himself through the self (Atman), which takes form as desire,		but for a man without self-mastery, an insatiable fire, Arjuna.	39	the self is like an enemy at war.	6
		·
The senses, mind, and understanding		The higher self (Atman) of a tranquil man
are said to harbor desire;		whose self is mastered
•		is perfectly poised in cold or heat,
with these desire obscures knowledge	40		7
and confounds the embodied self.	40	joy or suffering, honor or contempt.	7
Therefore, first restrain		Self-contented in knowledge (jnana) and judgment, your senses, Arjuna,		his senses subdued, on the summit of existence,
then kill this evil		impartial to clay, stone, or gold, that ruins knowledge and judgment.	41	the man of discipline (yogi) is disciplined.	8
that rums knowledge and judgment.	71	the man of discipline (vogi) is disciplined.	U
Men say that the senses are superior		He is get anout by his disinterest
		He is set apart by his disinterest in their objects, the mind superior to the senses,		toward comrades, allies, enemies,
understanding superior to the mind;		neutrals, nonpartisans, foes, friends, higher than understanding is the self.	42	good and even evil men.	9
Knowing the self beyond understanding,		A man of discipline (yogi) should always sustain the self with the self.		discipline himself, remain in seclusion.
Great Warrior, kill the enemy		isolated, his thought and self well controlled,
	43		10
menacing you in the form of desire!	43	without possessions or hope.	10
		H 1 116 6 1 16
		He should fix for himself
		a firm seat in a pure place,
THE SIXTH TEACHING
THE SIXTH TEACHING		a firm seat in a pure place,	11
The Man of Discipline		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low,	11
		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.	11
The Man of Discipline		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain	11
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses;	11
The Man of Discipline		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation) Lord Krishna		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses;	11
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits	1	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady;
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline,	1	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose	12
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.	1	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady;
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna,	1	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.	12
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam);	1	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled,	12
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained,	12
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam);	1	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline,	12
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined without renouncing willful intent.		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained,	12
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline,	12
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined without renouncing willful intent.		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline, his thought fixed on me, intent on me.	12
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined without renouncing willful intent.  Action (karma) is the means for a sage who seeks to mature in discipline (yoga);		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline, his thought fixed on me, intent on me.  Disciplinging himself,	12
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined without renouncing willful intent.  Action (karma) is the means for a sage who seeks to mature in discipline (yoga); tranquility is the means	2	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline, his thought fixed on me, intent on me.  Disciplinging himself, his mind controlled,	12
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined without renouncing willful intent.  Action (karma) is the means for a sage who seeks to mature in discipline (yoga);		a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline, his thought fixed on me, intent on me.  Disciplinging himself, his mind controlled, a man of discipline (yogi) finds peace,	12 13
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined without renouncing willful intent.  Action (karma) is the means for a sage who seeks to mature in discipline (yoga); tranquility is the means for one who is mature in discipline (yoga).	2	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline, his thought fixed on me, intent on me.  Disciplinging himself, his mind controlled,	12
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined without renouncing willful intent.  Action (karma) is the means for a sage who seeks to mature in discipline (yoga); tranquility is the means for one who is mature in discipline (yoga).  He is said to be mature in discipline (yoga)	2	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline, his thought fixed on me, intent on me.  Disciplinging himself, his mind controlled, a man of discipline (yogi) finds peace,	12 13
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined without renouncing willful intent.  Action (karma) is the means for a sage who seeks to mature in discipline (yoga); tranquility is the means for one who is mature in discipline (yoga).  He is said to be mature in discipline (yoga) when he has renounced all intention	2	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline, his thought fixed on me, intent on me.  Disciplinging himself, his mind controlled, a man of discipline (yogi) finds peace, the pure calm that exists in me.	12 13
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined without renouncing willful intent.  Action (karma) is the means for a sage who seeks to mature in discipline (yoga); tranquility is the means for one who is mature in discipline (yoga).  He is said to be mature in discipline (yoga)	2	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline, his thought fixed on me, intent on me.  Disciplinging himself, his mind controlled, a man of discipline (yogi) finds peace,	12 13
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined without renouncing willful intent.  Action (karma) is the means for a sage who seeks to mature in discipline (yoga); tranquility is the means for one who is mature in discipline (yoga).  He is said to be mature in discipline (yoga) when he has renounced all intention and is detached	2	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline, his thought fixed on me, intent on me.  Disciplinging himself, his mind controlled, a man of discipline (yogi) finds peace, the pure calm that exists in me.	12 13
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined without renouncing willful intent.  Action (karma) is the means for a sage who seeks to mature in discipline (yoga); tranquility is the means for one who is mature in discipline (yoga).  He is said to be mature in discipline (yoga) when he has renounced all intention	3	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline, his thought fixed on me, intent on me.  Disciplinging himself, his mind controlled, a man of discipline (yogi) finds peace, the pure calm that exists in me.  Gluttons have no discipline, nor the man who starves himself,	12 13
The Man of Discipline (The Yoga of Meditation)  Lord Krishna  One who does what must be done without concern for the fruits is a man of renunciation (sannyasin) and discipline, not one who shuns ritual fire and rites.  Know that discipline (yoga), Arjuna, is what men call renunciation (sannyasam); no man is disciplined without renouncing willful intent.  Action (karma) is the means for a sage who seeks to mature in discipline (yoga); tranquility is the means for one who is mature in discipline (yoga).  He is said to be mature in discipline (yoga) when he has renounced all intention and is detached	3	a firm seat in a pure place, neither too high nor too low, covered in cloth, deerskin, or grass.  He should focus his mind and restrain the activity of his thought and senses; sitting on that seat, he should practice discipline for the purification of the self.  He should keep his body, head and neck aligned, immobile, steady; he should gaze at the tip of the nose and not let his glance wander.  The self tranquil, his fear dispelled, firm in his vow of celibacy, his mind restrained, let him sit with discipline, his thought fixed on me, intent on me.  Disciplinging himself, his mind controlled, a man of discipline (yogi) finds peace, the pure calm that exists in me.	12 13

When a man disciplines his diet		Arming himself with discipline (yoga),
and diversions, his physical actions,		seeing everything with an equal eye,
his sleeping and waking,		he sees the self ( Atman ) in all creatures discipline (yoga) destroys his sorrow.	17	and all creatures in the self ( Atman ).	29
alsorphile Gogaf acstroys his sorrow.	1,	and an ereacures in the sen (noman).	_,
When his controlled thought		He who sees me everywhere
rests within the self ( Atman ) alone,		and sees everything in me without craving objects of desire,		will not be lost to me, he is said to be disciplined.	18	and I will not be lost to him.	30
ne is said to be disciplined.	10	and I will not be lost to inin.	30
"He does not waver, like a lamp sheltered		I exist in all creatures, from the wind" is the simile recalled		so the disciplined man (yogi) devoted to me for a man of discipline ( yogi ), restrained in thought		grasps the oneness of life;
and practicing self-discipline.	19	wherever he is, he is in men.	31
and practicing sen discipline.	1)	wherever he is, he is in men.	31
When his thought ceases,		When he sees identity in everything, chekced by the exercise of discipline ( yoga ),		whether joy or suffering,
he is content within the self ( Atman ),		through analogy with the self (Atman), seeing the self ( Atman ) through himself.	20	he is deemed a man of pure discipline ( yogi ).	32
seeing the sen (naman) through minsen.	20	ne is decined a man of pare discipline (Jogr).	32
Absolute joy beyond the senses
can only be grasped by understanding;		Arjuna when one knows it, he abides there and never wanders from this reality.	21	You define this discipline
y		by equanimity, Krishna;
Obtaining it, he thinks		but in my faltering condition,
there is no greater gain;		I see no ground for it.	33
abiding there, he is unmoved,
even by deep suffering.	22	Krishna, the mind is faltering, violent, strong, and stubborn;
Since he knows that discipline (yoga)		I find it as difficult
means unbinding the bonds of suffering,		to hold as the wind.	34
he should practice discipline ( $yoga$ ) resolutely,		••••••
without despair dulling his reason.	23	Lord Krishna
He should entirely relinquish		Without doubt, the mind desires aroused by willful intent;		is unsteady and hard to hold,
he should entirely control		but practice and dispassion
his senses with his mind.	24	can restrain it, Arjuna.	35
He should gradually become tranquil,		In my view, discipline (yoga) eludes firmly controlling his understanding;		the unrestrained self,
focusing his mind on the self (Atman),		but if he strives to master himself,
he should think nothing.	25	a man has the means to reach it.	36
Wherever his faltering mind		Arjuna unsteadily wanders,
he should restrain it		When a man has faith, but no acetic will,
and bring it under self-control.	26	and his mind deviates from discipline (yoga)
		before its perfection is achieved,	_
When his mind is tranquil, perfect joy		what way is there for him, Krishna?	37 comes to the man of discipline (yogi);
his passion is calmed, he is without sin,		Doomed by his double failure, being one with the infinite spirit ( Brahman ).	27	is he not like a cloud split apart, unsettled, deluded on the path of the infinite spirit (Brahman)?	38
Constantly disciplining himself,		Krishna, only you can dispel free from sin, the man of discipline		this doubt of mine completely;
easily achieves perfect joy		there is no one but you in harmony with the infinite spirit (Brahman).	28	to dispel this doubt.	39

Lord Krishna		Just as you have described yourself, I wish to see your form
Arjuna, he does not suffer		in all its majesty, doom in this world or the next;		Krishna, Supreme among Men.	3 any man who acts with honor	4.0	If you shirt I am you in cannot go the wrong way, my friend.	40	If you think I can see it, reveal to me
Fallen in discipline ( yoga ), he reaches		your immutable self, worlds made by his virtue, wherein he dwells		Krishna, Lord of Discipline ( Yoga ).	4
for endless years, until he is reborn		Misima, Lora of Discipline (10ga).	•
in a house of upright and noble men.	41	Lord Krishna
1 0
Or he is born in a family		Arjuna, see my forms
of disciplined men;		in hundreds and thousands;
the kind of birth in the world		diverse, divine,
that is very hard to win.	42	of many colors and shapes.	5
The section of death		Continuous and and a Clinia
There he regains a depth		See the sun gods, gods of light, howling storm gods, twin gods of dawn, of understanding from his former life and strives further		and gods of wind, Arjuna,
to perfection, Arjuna.	43	wondrous forms not seen before.	6
to perfection, mjunu.	15	wondrous forms not seen before.	O
Carried by the force of his previous practice,		Arjuna, see all the universe,
a man who seeks to learn discipline (yoga)		animate and inanimate, passes beyond sacred lore (Vedic hymns)		and whatever else you wish to see;
that expresses the infinite spirit (Brahman) in words	. 44	all stand here as one in my body.	7
The man of discipline ( yogi ), striving		But you cannot see me with effort, purified of his sins,		with your own eye;
perfected through many births.	45	I will give you a divine eye to see	8
finds a higher way.	43	all stands here as one in my body.	0
He is deemed superior		Sanjaya
to men of penance,
men of knowledge, and men of action;		O King, saying this, Krishna, be a man of discipline, Arjuna!	46	the great lord of discipline (yoga)
		revealed to Arjuna
Of all the men of discipline,		the true majesty of his form.	9
the faithful man devoted to me,		It was a wealtife was a seen durant at an with his inner self deep in mine, I deem most disciplined.	47	It was a multiform, wondrous vision, with countless mouths and eyes
i deem most discipimed.	47	and celestial ornaments,
		brandishing many divine weapons.	10
		branaishing many arvine weapons.
		Everywhere was boundless divinity
THE ELEVENTH TEACHING		containing all astonishing things,
The Vision of Krishna's Totality		wearing divine garlands and garments,
The vision of Krishna's Totality		annointed with divine perfume.	11
Arjuna
,		If the light of a thousand suns were to rise in the sky at once,
To favor me you revealed		it would be like the light
the deepest mystery of the self,		of that great spirit.	12
and by your words		or that great spirit	14
my delusion is dispelled.	1	Arjuna saw all the universe
71 16 1 1 1 1		in its many ways and parts,
I heard from you in detail		standing as one in the body
how creatures come to be and die,		of the god of gods.	13
Krishna, and about the self in its immutable greatness.	2
m its minutable greathess.	۷

Then filled with amazement,		Vishnu, seeing you brush the clouds with flames his hair bristling on his flesh,		of countless colors,
Arjuna bowed his head to the god,		your mouths agape, your huge eyes blazing,
joined his hands in homage, and spoke.	14	my inner self quakes
,		and I find no resolve or tranquility.	24
Arjuna
		Seeing the fangs protuding from your mouths
I see the gods in your body, O God,		like the fires of time, I lose my bearings
and hordes of various creatures:		and I find no refuge;
Brahma, the cosmic creator, on his lotus throne,		be gracious, Lord of Gods, all the seers and celestial serpents.	15	Shelter of the Universe.	25
I see your boundless form everywhere,		All those sons of the blind king Dhritarashtra
the countless arms, bellies, mouths, and eyes;		come accompanied by troops of kings,
Lord of All, I see no end,		by the generals Bhishma, Drona, Karna.
or middle or beginning to your totality.	16	and by our battle leaders.	26
I see you blazing through the fiery rays		Rushing through your fangs
of your crown, mace, and discus,		into grim mouths, hard to behold in the burning light		some are dangling from heads of fire and sun that surrounds		crushed between your teeth.	27
your measureless presence.	17
		As roiling river waters
You are to be known as supreme eternity,		stream headlong toward the sea,
the deepest treasure of all that is,		so do these human heroes
the immutable guardian		enter into your blazing mouths.	28
of enduring sacred duty (dharma)
I think you are man's timeless spirit.	18	As moths in the frenzy of destruction fly into a blazing flame,
I see no beginning or middle or end to you;		worlds in the frenzy of destruction
only boundless strength in your endless arms,		enter your mouths.	29
the moon and sun in your eyes,
your mouths of consuming flames,		You lick at the worlds around you, your own brilliance scorching the universe.	19	devouring them with flaming mouths;
		and your terrible fires scorch the entire universe
You alone fill the space		filling it, Vishnu, with violent rays.	30 between heaven and earth and all the directions;
seeing this awesome, terrible form of yours,		Tell me—who are you in this terrible form?
Great Soul, the three worlds tremble.	20	Homage to you, Best of Gods!
		Be gracious! I want to know you
Throngs of gods enter you,		as you are in your beginning.
some in their terror make gestures of homage		I do not comprehend the course of your ways.	31
to invoke you;
throngs of great sages and saints		Lord Krishna
hail you and praise you in resounding hymns.	21
		I am time grown old,
Howling storm gods, sun gods,		creating world destruction,1 bright gods, and gods of ritual,		set in motion to annihilate the worlds;
gods of the universe,		even without you,
twin gods of dawn, wind gods,		all these warriors arrayed in hostile ranks
vapor-drinking ghosts,		will cease to exist.	32
throngs of celestial musicians, demigods, demons, and saints,
all gaze at you amazed.	22
Seeing the many mouths and eyes
of your great form,
its many arms, thighs, feet, bellies and fangs,		1 After watching the detonation of the first atomic bom	h on the worlds tremble and so do I.	23	July 16, 1945, J. Robert Oppenheimer famously quoted verse in a different translation: "Now I am become de
		the destroyer of worlds."	,
		•

Therefore, arise and win glory! Conquer your foes and fulfill your kingship! They are already killed by me. Be just my instrument, the archer at my side!	33	You are father of the world of animate and inanimate things, most worthy of worship, without equal. Where in all the three worlds is another to match you extraordinary power?	43
Drona, Bhishma, Jayadratha, and Karna,
and all the other battle heroes,		I bow to you,
are killed by me.		I prostrate my body,
Kill them without wavering;	2.4	I beg you to be gracious, fight, and you will conquer your foes in battle.	34	Worshipful Lord—
Sanjaya		as a father to a son, a friend to a friend,
Sunjuyu		a lover to a beloved,
Hearing Krishna's words,		O God, hear with me.	44
Arjuna trembled under his crown,		o dou, nour mon
and he joined his hands in reverent homage;		I am thrilled, terrified of his fear,		and yet my mind trembles with fear
he bowed to Krishna and stammered in reply.	35	at seeing what has not been seen before.
		Show me, God, the form I know—
Arjuna		be gracious, Lord of Gods,
		Shelter of the World.	45
Krishna, the universe responds		I
with joy and rapture to your glory, terrified demons flee in far directions,		I want to see you as before, with your crown and mace, and saints throng to bow in homage.	36	and the discus in your hand.
and saints throng to bow in nomage.	30	O Thousand-Armed God,
Why should they not bow in homage to you,		assume the four-armed form
Great Soul Original Creator,		embodied in your totality.	46
more venerable than the creator Brahma?		,
Boundless Lord of Gods, Shelter of All that is,		Lord Krishna
you are eternity, being, nonbeing and beyond.	37
		To grace you, Arjuna,
you are the original god,		I revealed through self-discipline
the primordial spirit of man,		my higher form,
the deepest treasure of all that is,		which no one but you has ever beheld—	47
knower and what is to be known, the supreme abode;		brilliant, total, boundless, primal.	47
you pervade the universe,		Not through sacred lore or sacrificial ritual
Lord of Boundless Form.	38	or study or charity, not by rites or by terrible penances
You are the god of wind, death, fire, and water;		can I be seen in this form in the world of men
the moon; the lord of life; and the great ancestor.		by anyone but you, Great Hero.	48
Homage to you, a thousand times homage!
I bow in homage to you again and yet again.	39	Do not tremble or suffer confusion from seeing my horrific form;
I bow in homage before you and behind you;		your fear dispelled,
I bow everywhere to your omnipotence! You have boundless strength and limitless force;		your mind full of love, see my form again as it was.	49
you fulfill all that you are.	40	see my form again as it was.	47
you runni an that you are.	10	Sanjaya
Thnking you a friend, I boldly said,		2 9>
"Welcome, Krishna! Welcome, cousin, friend!"		Saying this to Arjuna,
From negligence, or through love,		Krishna once more revealed his intimate form;
I failed to know your greatness.	41	resuming his gentle body,
		the great spirit let the terrified hero
If in jest I offended you,		regain his breath.	50
alone or publicly,
at sport, rest, sitting or at meals,	42
I beg your patience, unfathomable Krishna.	42

Arjuna		can I be seen in the form that you saw me.	53
Seeing your gentle human form,		that you saw me.	33
Krishna, I recover		By devotion alone
my own nature,		can I, as I really am,
and my reason is restored.	51	be known and seen and my reason is restored.	01	and entered into, Arjuna.	54
Lord Krishna		ana ontoroa mio, myana.	0.1
		Acting only for me, intent on me,
This form you have seen		free from attachment,
is rarely revealed;		hostile to no creature, Arjuna,
the gods are constantly craving		a man of devotion comes to me.	55
for a vision of this form.	52
		* * *
Not through sacrificial lore, penances, charity, or sacrificial rites

 ${\it Introduction}\ {\it by}\ {\it Tim}\ {\it Freeman}, {\it University}\ {\it of}\ {\it Hawai'i}\ {\it at}\ {\it Hilo}.$

Translation:

The Bhagavad Gita, Barbara Stoler Miller, trans. Bantam Dell, 1986.